SPOTLIGHT ON:

Our Neighbor, Dennis Traynor, Earns Certification as a Certified Legal Video Specialist

(This article was previously written and posted by the Jessamine Journal)

The National Court Reporters Association (NCRA), the country's leading organization representing stenographic court reporters, captioners and legal videographers, has announced that Dennis Traynor has earned the nationally recognized Certified Legal Video Specialist (CLVS) certification, having demonstrated his ability to produce a high-quality video record of a legal deposition. CLVS certification distinguishes legal videographers as leading experts in the capture, editing and production of video depositions.

"Earning the CLVS certification is quite an accomplishment given the amount of preparation and knowledge that successful candidates must possess to pass,"

NEIGHBOR SPOTLIGHT— A NEW FEATURE TO CROSSWOODS NEWS!

Neighbor Spotlight is now a regular feature on our newsletter and website. If you have an interesting accomplishment or story about yourself, a family member, or another neighbor, tell us about it and we will post it to share with other neighbors.

says Jim Cudahy, CEO and executive director of NCRA. "Those who hold the CLVS certification are not only among the top legal videographers in the profession, but they also embark on a path of lifetime learning with continuing education requirements."

To be recognized as a CLVS, candidates prove their knowledge of industry best practices by passing a written test as well as a practical examination that simulates a live deposition. CLVS-certified videographers are in high demand among the nation's premier court-reporting firms and law firms.

Traynor is a Legal Videographer in Nicholasville and is a Crosswoods Neighbor.
